

How Many Ways Can You Connect?

While you may be reading this on a page of the printed magazine, don't miss out on the many other ways you can access industry-specific articles and additional resources that can help you manage your operation.

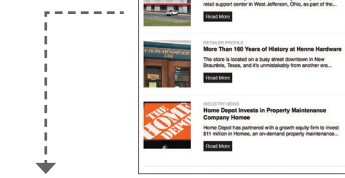

Check out your options below to make sure you're getting all the information you need in the way that's most convenient for you. Visit TheRedT.com/nrha-news to choose the communications that matter to you most. ➔

Hardware Retailing Digital Edition

The print version of Hardware Retailing is published monthly by NRHA, but did you know there is also a monthly digital edition you can receive by email? It's the print version of the magazine in an easy-to-read online format. You can also access previous issues so you're never far from the industry's leading publication.

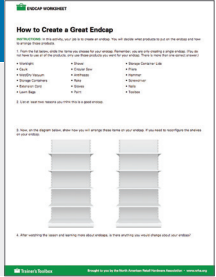

Industry Newsletter

Every week, you can receive a roundup of the latest industry news, operations articles, research, new products and more right in your inbox. This newsletter makes it easy for you to have the information you want delivered directly to you so you can view it no matter where you are.

Education and Training

NRHA develops educational and training opportunities for retailers across the professional spectrum, from new cashiers to longtime executives. Get information on the programs that make sense for your team members to ensure their success and strengthen your operation.

Research

Every year, NRHA facilitates industry-specific research to keep you informed on trends. When you sign up to receive emails about industry research, you can be the first to participate in industry studies and reports and get first access to the statistics and trends that are shaping the industry.

Association News and Events

NRHA represents all independent home improvement retailers, regardless of wholesale affiliation. Sign up to stay connected to what's happening at the association headquarters in Indianapolis and to the events and networking opportunities that your association hosts for your benefit.

